> THE AWARD & FINANCIAL NEED

SCHOLARSHIP AWARD

The Program includes a $12,000 scholarship per academic year, renewable for four years ($6,000 each semester). The total program is valued at over $100,000.

Scholarship funds are paid directly to the university to cover direct educational costs such as tuition, room & board, university fees, parking passes, textbooks, etc. Once all university-related costs are paid, any remaining funds will be released to Scholars to cover other reasonable indirect costs of attendance.

DEMONSTRATING FINANCIAL NEED

The Dorrance Scholarship is a Need-Based Award, and will not be awarded to students who do not demonstrate need or who are over-awarded. Over-award status is determined by the sum of grants, scholarships, loans, work-study, and waivers.

Applicants and current Scholars must demonstrate financial need each year by completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Financial need is NOT determined by Pell Grant or free and reduced lunch eligibility. Financial need is calculated by each university using the following formula:

NEED = UNIVERSITY COST OF ATTENDANCE (COA) - FAFSA STUDENT AID INDEX (SAI)

If the SAI is greater than the COA, there is no demonstrated need. The SAI can be located in the Student Aid Report (SAR) upon the completion and processing of the FAFSA. Please note further action may be required or FAFSA may request signatures to be submitted by standard mail, which will require extra processing time. The Program recommends submitting the FAFSA as soon as possible. Any FAFSA's submitted after January 14th may not be processed in time and no exceptions will be made for the Phase I deadline.

of high school seniors that complete the FAFSA enroll in college by November, following graduation.

The application process includes three phases over the course of the academic year. The application platform is SurveyMonkey Apply. THE PROGRAM

The operational and participation costs for each program are covered by the Dorrance Scholarship Programs.

SUMMER ONE: RISING FRESHMEN

SUMMER BRIDGE PROGRAM

This five-week program is an introduction to learning processes, campus resources, and academic expectations that assist recipients in becoming successful Dorrance Scholars and university students.

- Earn college credit;
- Join a network of Dorrance Scholars, including mentors, and professional staff;
- Adjust to living and eating on campus while navigating available resources;
- Meet with a Dorrance advisor for one-on-one coaching to develop a strategic academic and personal plan.

SUMMER TWO: RISING SOPHOMORES

HUMANITIES PROGRAM

In addition to professional knowledge and skills, a college-educated person should be able to write and speak clearly and persuasively, analyze data effectively, and work in diverse groups in an increasingly interdependent (global) world. These characteristics - skills that employers desire - are nurtured in the Humanities. The summer program will immerse Scholars in the Humanities and prepare them for the academic and logistical challenges of global travel.

- Earn college credit;
- Gain a foundational, interdisciplinary experience in the Humanities essential for all majors and career paths;
- Complete five weeks of instruction, materials, site visits, and colloquia led by Program staff and faculty;

The courses offer Scholars many opportunities to analyze cultural artifacts and foster an appreciation for some of the great western artistic works and sites in Europe, tracing their influence to the United States. While abroad, Scholars will have the chance to live among locals as they gain a global perspective.

The course will equip students with the skills to identify and pursue strategic responses to opportunities for innovation in the human condition. This immersive experience into the world of innovation culminates with live presentations about the ventures Scholars have created.

- Earn college credit;
- · Evaluate the quality of ideas and social and commercial entrepreneurial opportunities;
- · Participate in guided site visits and colloquia;

- Gain experience in their area of study;
- Network with individuals that are in their career field;
- Add defining experiences to their resume/CV;
- Acquire the skills to apply knowledge in real-world settings.

ADDITIONAL SUPPORT OPPORTUNITES

Tutoring works best when Scholars take advantage of it sooner rather than later. If free tutoring services are insufficient to meet their needs, Program Advisors can find provide support for private tutoring paid by the Program.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Scholars may apply for funding to enhance their learning and marketability for graduate admissions and professional opportunities. Common uses of this funding include expenses to attend a conference, course material and exams for professional certifications.

MENTORING AND ADVOCACY

Scholars are matched with an upperclassman mentor. Scholars also have access to Program alumni that are happy to connect and answer questions about their degree, graduate school, and their career field.

GRADUATE SCHOOL EXPENSES

Scholars may request reimbursement for testing fees, such as the GRE, GMAT, LSAT, MCAT; one preparation course; up to two campus visits, and up to four admissions application fees.

INTERNSHIPS

Scholars may apply for summer internship funding if they are participating in a credit-bearing internship to cover the cost of living, transportation expenses, and tuition fees.

POST-GRADUATION

ALUMNI NETWORK

Involvement with the Program community does not end upon graduation. Alumni are able to continue engaging through mentorship to current Scholars, running workshops, and paneling events. With hundreds of alumni, Scholars continue to be apart of a close-knit professional community with opportunities for group retreats, volunteering, networking events, and serving on Program committees.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

How does the Dorrance Scholarship Program determine if a student is a first-generation college student?

The Dorrance Scholarship Program considers applicants a first-generation college student if neither parent, stepparent, or legal guardian holds a four-year degree from any country. If a sibling holds a four-year degree, the applicant is still considered a first-generation college student.

Can a student attend community college first, then apply for the Dorrance Scholarship?

The selection committee will only consider applicants applying during their senior year in high school and will only make awards to students going directly from high school to one of Arizona's three public universities' main residential campuses (Arizona State University-Tempe, Northern Arizona University-Flagstaff, University of Arizona-Tucson).

What if a parent is currently in college and attains their degree after the student is awarded a Dorrance Scholarship?

If an applicant's parent is currently attending college but does not have a four-year bachelor's degree or equivalent yet, they are still considered a first-generation college student. If they do not receive a degree before the student is awarded the Dorrance Scholarship he/she would still be eligible.

Is the Dorrance Scholarship stackable with other financial aid?

The scholarship is stackable, which means the student can add it to other types of aid they receive, but only up to the total Cost of Attendance as set by the university. A student may not be over-awarded.

Where does the counselor/teacher send their recommendation?

The application requires two recommendations: one from a teacher of an academic course (english, math, science, history, or a foreign language) and another from the school counselor. Once a student inputs their recommenders' names and email addresses into the application, the recommender will receive an email with instructions to submit their recommendation form via the online portal. Letters of recommendation will not be accepted, only the requested form.

> FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What if the student is unsure which university they will attend?

The applicant must select their top choice of university on the application. If the student changes their preference, they may change their selection up until the Phase II deadline by phone or email. If the student makes a final decision about going out of state or to a different Arizona school that is not ASU – Tempe, NAU – Flagstaff, or UA -Tucson, staff will remove the application from the selection process.

What if the student is not able to attend the New Scholar Orientation or the Dorrance Summer Bridge Program the summer before freshman year?

Recipients must attend and participate fully in the New Scholar Orientation and Dorrance Summer Bridge Program at their awarded university. Final dates will be shared with applicants throughout the application process.

When are Dorrance Scholarship recipients announced?

Dorrance Scholars are selected and notified by April 30th each year. If a student is offered the Dorrance Scholarship and does not wish to accept it, they may decline. Staff will share a deadline with applicants during the selection process and ask that they share their intent to decline so that we may notify an alternate.
